Vinehealth Australia chief Inca Pearce says grape growers should take advantage of the later start to vintage and review their farm hygiene.

WINE grape growers are being encouraged to examine and improve their farm gate hygiene before the vintage.

Vinehealth Australia said the wine grape harvest was a key risk time for the spread of pests and diseases such as phylloxera due to the increased movements of grapes, machinery, equipment, vehicles and people.

It said responsibility for preventing the spread of pests and diseases between and within states was a collective effort between industry and regulators.
